MAIN FEATURES

13,275 non-fatal claims (an increase of 6.3 per cent from 1978-79), each involving lost time of one week or more were reported as finalised during 1979-80; 12,613 were for accidents (an increase of 4.3 per cent) and 662 for diseases (an increase of 66 per cent).

The increase in disease claims was due mainly to increases of:

- 160 per cent in cases of rheumatism (excluding the back) - which includes disorders of muscles and tendons and their attachments, and
- 59 per cent in cases of infectious and parasitic diseases.

Of the 13,275 non-fatal claims:

- accident cases averaged 6.0 weeks lost time compared with 10.5 weeks for diseases, and
- 476 cases (an increase of 62 per cent) also involved time on light duties averaging 4.1 weeks, compared with 8.6 weeks in 1978-79.

27 fatalities occurred during 1979-80, 19 involving accidents and 8 involving diseases.

EXPLANATORY NOTES

INTRODUCTION

Except for the data on fatal events (Appendix A), the statistics contained in this bulletin have been compiled from reports received of workers compensation claims closed during the year ended 30 June 1980 and of claims still unclosed which arose during 1976-77, i.e. of three years duration at 30 June 1980. Reports are submitted by insurance companies, self-insurers, and State Government departments, through the South Australian Department of Industrial Affairs and Employment.

2. There are differences in tabulations for 1979-80 statistics compared with previous years because new classifications were introduced, viz: Type of Accident and Agency of Accident classifications replaced the single Accident Factor classification and separate Nature of Injury and Bodily Location of Injury classifications have replaced the previous Location by Injury classification.

3. Adoption of the new classifications is part of a program to produce statistics for each State on a more uniform basis, thereby facilitating the compilation of national aggregates. Other necessary changes in the statistics for S.A. will be incorporated in the 1980-81 issue of this bulletin.

SCOPE AND COVERAGE

4. Only persons within the coverage of the South Australian Workers Compensation Act, 1971-1979 are included. Notable exclusions are self-employed persons (although following a change in legislation persons supplying labour only in contracts have been included from 1 January 1974) and all Commonwealth Government officers and employees. Consequently, coverage was reduced when the majority of former South Australian Railways employees transferred to the Australian National Railways Commission in March 1978.

5. The exclusion of self-employed persons is likely to have considerable effect in industries where self-employment is significant (e.g. retail trade, rural industries). Because of the exclusion of Commonwealth Government employees, defence services and Government communications industry groups are not covered, while coverage is reduced in other industries (e.g. building and construction).

6. Although the term 'industrial accident' is used, the statistics cover both accident and disease claims. The accidents and diseases to which the claims refer may have occurred in the year the claim was finalised or within the previous three financial years. For diseases, the date of 'occurrence' is taken to be the last day upon which the employee worked. For unclosed claims (accidents and diseases) of 3 years duration at 30 June 1980, estimates are made of amounts yet to be paid and future time losses.

7. Each original claim has been regarded as a separate event and although reports have been received of re-opened claims, they have been excluded from the main tabulations (see Appendix B - 'Late Reports and Re-opened Claims').

DEFINITIONS

8. For the purpose of this collection the following definitions have been adopted:

Industrial Accident. A compensated work injury causing death or absence of the injured person from work for one week or more, but excluding disease cases and accidents during journeys or recess periods if the victim is not engaged in normal occupational duties. 'One week' has been interpreted as seven calendar days or five working days.

Industrial disease. An industrial disease exhibits one or more of the following characteristics:

- (i) the slow and protracted nature of its cause;
- (ii) its ascribability to repeated or continuous action of a mechanical, physical, or chemical cause; it is not the effect of a single event but of a cause acting imperceptibly and constantly;
- (iii) indeterminateness of the time of its beginning due to its slow and insidious development;
- (iv) the possible importance of individual predisposition as a factor in the development of the pathological conditions.

This definition conforms with that of the International Labour Office (ILO).

Fatal Accident or Disease. So classified regardless of the time intervening between injury or onset of disease and death, provided that death occurs before the claim is closed or regarded statistically as closed.

Type of Accident. The manner of contact of the injured person with the object or substance or the exposure or movement of the person which resulted in the injury.

Agency of Accident. The underlying factor (object, substance or circumstance), other than human failing, which was most closely associated with the accident and which in general could have been guarded against or corrected. It is the primary cause of the accident.

Time Lost. The actual time lost from work except that persons reported to be totally and permanently incapacitated as a result of a compensatable work injury or disease are statistically allotted a duration of incapacity of 156 weeks.

Amount Paid. Includes compensation for wages lost, hospital and medical expenses, and lump sum settlements.

CLASSIFICATIONS

9. For the purpose of this collection the following classifications have been adopted:

Type and Agency of Accident. Both classifications are based on those recommended by the ILO.

Nature of Injury. Based on Chapter XVII of the Ninth Revision (1975) of the World Health Organisation's (WHO) "International Statistical Classification of Diseases, Injuries and Causes of Death" but adjusted to ensure, whenever possible, classification to the principal original injury.

Nature of Disease. The appropriate chapters of the above WHO classification are used. Earlier years used the Seventh Revision (1955).

Bodily Location of Injury. The location of the principal original injury (as determined for classifying nature of injury) is coded using a classification which is broadly comparable at the level of detail in this bulletin to that recommended by the ILO.

Industry. The particular establishment or workplace of the injured worker is classified in accordance with the 1978 Edition of the Australian Standard Industrial Classification (ASIC). From 1975-76 to 1978-79 the 1969 Preliminary Edition of ASIC was used. The 1966 Census Classification List of Industries was used for earlier years.

Occupation. Classified in accordance with the 1976 Population Census Classification of Occupations. For the occupation groups shown, the statistics are comparable with those based on the 1971 Classification which was used for years before 1978-79.

APPENDIX A

FATAL EVENTS

CLAIMS LOST AND COMPENSATION PAID

As mentioned in the 1978-79 issue of this bulletin, there are some reservations regarding the completeness of reporting of fatal events. Investigations and the receipt of additional reports have resulted in the revised figures (by year of occurrence as distinct from year in which claim was closed) in the table below.

Year of occurrence	Fatal accidents	Fatal diseases	Total fatal events
1975-76	18	17	35
1976-77	16	11	27
1977-78	11	8	19
1978-79	19	7	26
1979-80	19	8	27

2. For 1979-80, 10 accident cases involved lifting equipment or means of transportation, 4 involved machinery, 3 other equipment and 2 involved chemicals etc. Occupational categories involved were 8 tradesmen, process workers, 4 farmers, fishermen, 3 in service, sport and recreation, 2 professional, administrative etc. and 1 each of sales workers and miners, quarrymen.

APPENDIX B

LATE REPORTS AND RE-OPENED CLAIMS

Late reports are those non-fatal accident and disease reports which were received after finalisation of the statistics for the year in which they should have been included e.g. the details shown against the year 1978-79 below relate to reports which were received after 1978-79 statistics had been finalised, the relevant accident and disease claims having been closed during 1978-79 or been unclosed of 3 years duration at 30 June 1979. The figures in the table below are subject to revision should additional late reports pertaining to those years be received.

2. Re-opened claims are cases where the original claims were closed but subsequently re-opened because further incapacity occurred or additional payments were made and were attributable to the original accident or disease. Provided that the total of the time lost in the original claim and its re-opening amounted to one week or more, details have been included below.

3. However, where:

- (i) the original claim involved time lost of less than one week then total time lost and total compensation paid (from both original and re-opened claims) are included in the table below,
- (ii) the original claim involved time lost of one week or more then additional time lost and additional compensation paid are included below. The original amounts of time lost and compensation paid have been included in the main tabulations for the relevant year.

4. In this latter case, the number of such claims has been included in both the main tabulations for the years in which the original claims were closed and the number of re-opened claims shown below for the years in which the re-opened claims were closed.

Year	Number	Time lost	Compensation

1978-79	420	3,690	1,519,600
1979-80	360	3,380	1,763,000

(a) For late reports, the year refers to the one in which the reports should have been tabulated had they been received in time.
